

The Swimming Pool Terror

One wet and windy Thursday, a 9 year old girl called Mary was walking to school with her friends. They were called Emma, Sophie, Megan and Katie. As they slowly entered the classroom, they saw there was a new teacher covering for their sick teacher. His name was Mr Smith.

"Hello class!" shouted Mr Smith.

Or shall I say The Doctor?

We had just done the registration. Mr Smith asked the first swimming group to go to the pool. So Mary and my group went there.

Mary went into the big pool, it was as big as two classrooms. Mary went to get changed. Suddenly Mary heard a strange slurping voice. "Did you hear that Katie?" whispered Mary.

"Hear what?" replied Katie.

"That horrible noise. Don't you hear it?" exclaimed Mary. After the huge conversation, Mary, Katie and her swimming group went on to the pool. Mary was feeling nervous. She could still hear the strange noise....

After the swimming class Mary was getting hungry, so she hurried getting dressed. She had finished now, and the class teacher was waiting outside the pool building, she remembered that she had left her swimming hat on the pool. She went carefully back, her steps were as small as a mouse's step.

Now she was in the changing room again. The noise she heard was getting louder and louder. So she thought she would take a chance, she creepily walked towards the pool. "Squeak!" there was a squeaky toy on the floor. "Roar!" shouted the monster.

Meanwhile the Doctor was getting worried.

"What is going on in there?" exclaimed the Doctor.

Mary was still walking slowly, finally she got to the pool. Now her friend Megan was in too. She was getting worried so she came in.

"AArrr!" shouted Mary. There was a huge squid in the pool. It turned quickly and zapped Megan with its stinging tentacles.

"HELP!" shouted Mary.

The Doctor came running, "Squidadot"!

"Doctor" said the Squidadot ...

And he killed the Squidadot with his laser beam gun.

"Thank you Doctor!" exclaimed the poor child and Mary.

The Doctor walked off into the Tardis, then suddenly disappeared, leaving his coat behind.

"I will keep this forever in heaven" replied Megan, feeling poorly.

Chewing Gum Can Be Dangerous!

It was Wednesday morning the 30th January 2008, and Mia was walking to school with her mum.

"So Mia, what exciting things do you think your'e doing at school today" asked mum.

"Well" said Mia "We might be doing maths and I love maths mum" exclaimed Mia. Mia skipped into the playground the bell rang. "Bye mum" shouted Mia as she ran into school.

"Have a good day" mum replied.

The teacher took the register ad the class went to assembly.

After assembly Mrs Dinnage heard the lady in the office screaming, she told the class to wait and went in. Yet she ended up screaming too, it was a whirl pool and soon a huge Police Box cam tumbling into the office, the teacher screamed once more and out of the police box came Doctor Who. The lady in the office wondered who sent for The Doctor.

She went to get Mr Dubery (the Headmaster) and found out he was the one who sent for the Doctor.

"Hello Mr Who" said Mr Dubery. "I sent for you because I am worried about the school. I keep finding traces of green that look like blobs" explained Mr Dubery. "I kept a piece in a jar for you to sample" continued Mr Dubery.

The Doctor carefully put his finger in the jar and sampled.

"Ahh I know what it is, you've got a serious problem of the Slitheen" the Doctor curiously said looking at Mr Dubery.

The Doctor went back to the office and went inside the Tardis. The Tardis was broken, the Doctor fixed his Tardis with the sonic screwdriver. He put the electric gum in his pocket and went back out. He went upstairs in the elevator and saw it. It was the Slitheen, green as grass and very hairy with dirty long yellow claws. The Doctor grabbed a gum and chewed. It gave him an electric shock in his mouth which made him chew faster, then he spat it at the Slitheen. The Slitheen got slammed against the wall and was stuck.

The Doctor reached for the Alien Shutdown gum, and now all he had to do was get it into the Slitheen's mouth. The Doctor ran over to the Slitheen, it was still stuck on the wall, and shoved it into the Slitheen's mouth. The Slitheen was now shutdown for 1,000 years. The Doctor was needing to get back.

"My work here is done, farewell!" exclaimed The Doctor, and went back into the whirlpool back to his own time!

The Tardis Takes The Doctor Back To School

"We've appeared in front of a school Doctor" Rose explained.

"We're in front of my old school Marian Vian", The Doctor replied.

It looked odd The Doctor thought, not the way it used to get you excited, like you're in front of a toy shop, it looked old and boring from here, like a haunted house.

The Doctor and Rose meant to go to the future, not the past. "The Tardis got mixed-up" said Rose. "I know that" The Doctor replied nervously.

Then both of them walked in. In front of them were stairs, they went up and up. There was a green door scratched with spiders webs.

The Doctor peeped through the hole, he saw himself as a child. It was his classroom the date was January 30th 1764.

He ran back down the stairs.

"What's wrong Doctor?" Rose said.

"That kid I saw in the classroom was me."

Rose thought for a second or 2 but then she looked forward and saw the headmaster's office.

She saw a laser beam, the colour was fiery red. It beamed through the black shimmering door.

"Doctor, look there's a glowing fire red beam glowing through the door" she said quietly.

"Oh no the Doctor" said anxiously, "that's my old principal, Principal Prickley".

Rose ignored him and ran down the hallway to his office. The Doctor followed her, Rose stood in front of his office, so did the Doctor. Rose ran into his office.

"Hello young lady" Principal Prickley said sharply.

Rose replied "You seem anxious and nasty, and what do you think you're at with that laser beam blasting through your door? You're not the Queen of Sheba!" she said horribly.

The Doctor ran in.

"Oh! Hello, I didn't know we had company"

Principal Prickley said sharply, and then he picked up a bomb and chucked it.

"Oh no!" Rose said nervously.

The Doctor said "Warn every class! I'll start here, you start there."

The two of them ran and warned everybody, and eventually escaped the school. They all watched outside, the school blew up.

So The Doctor and Rose left. They got thanked for saving everybody, and then they left for their next exciting trip.
